

ment to a cause he considered just and honourable. His body was discovered next day buried under leaves, having been dragged thither from the place of combat. A ball had penetrated his brain,, his hat was full of powder and even smoke,, and the pistol he held in his hand was battered, evidently by the resistance he made to the unfair approach of his murderer. It seems as if he had shot and missed, and then his adversary ran in and assassinated him, a forester having heard two pistols at the distance of two minutes of time.
 The survivor has been traced, but it is supposed,

In consequence of the unfortunate youth's dying request contained in a letter to his father, that the pursuit will be stopped.

18&. Went to Versailles. No the at Madame de Polignac's, as all the set went to the King's room to make his *partie

Madame Campan informed me of the Queen of Naples having been delivered of a dead child, in consequence of the Spanish minister's language to her by orders of his master. He accused her of having General Acton for her lover, to which she answered, 1 will have his picture drawn by the best painter in Italy, and his bust made by the best sculptor, and both sent to the King of Spain, who may judge whether his, is a figure for

VOL. ii 3